

Greta Thunberg full speech at Extinction Rebellion

It's an honour for me to be here with you today together we are making a difference.

I come from Sweden and back there it's almost the same problem as here, as everywhere, that nothing is being done to stop a climate and ecological crisis. Despite all the beautiful words and promises and we are now facing an existential crisis, the climate crisis and ecological crisis which have never been treated as crises before, they have been ignored for decades.

And for way too long the politicians and the people in power have gotten away with not doing anything at all to fight the climate crisis and the ecological crisis but we will make sure that politicians will not get away with it for any longer.

Humanity is now standing at a crossroads. We must now decide which path we want to take how do we want the future living conditions for all species to be like we have gathered here today and on many other places around on them and across the world - we've gathered today because we have chosen which path we want to take and now we are waiting for the others to follow our example.

We are the ones making a difference - we the people in this extinction rebellion and the children's school struggle for the climate. We are the ones making a difference. It shouldn't be like that, but since no one else is doing anything we will have to do so and we will never stop fighting, we will never stop fighting for this planet and for ourselves our futures and for the futures of our children and grandchildren.

Thank you!
